

Keep moving, Keep fit

Exercise is important for everyone whether you have Parkinson's or not. The exercises on this poster are just some of those you may like to do as part of a daily exercise programme. They are not intended to replace regular sessions with your physiotherapist or other classes. Remember to warm up with gentle stretches before strengthening exercises. Daily exercise could include activities such as walking, tai chi or hydrotherapy. Always be aware of your posture when exercising, walking, sitting or standing. It is always advisable to consult your doctor before starting any exercise programme.

Stretches

Bring your hands back to waist level, breathe in and push hands upwards while pushing the breath out. Bring hands back to waist level, breathe in and push hands down to the floor while breathing out. Turn your palms upwards and carefully straighten out to a sitting position. Repeat 3 times.

Posture

Exercises to improve posture
- can be performed daily

Sitting posture

Choose a chair with a stable base and good support. You may want to place a small rolled towel or lumbar roll in the curve of your back. This will help lengthen your back. Repeat 3 times.

Standing posture

Stand facing the wall. Stretch up the wall with both arms. Try to lengthen the back. Repeat 3 times.

Pelvic tilt

Lie on your back on the floor with your knees bent, feet flat. Flatten the small of your back against the floor using your stomach muscles. Breathe in and hold the position for 5 to 10 seconds. Progress the exercise by lifting one knee slowly towards your chest. Straighten leg and lower slowly. Repeat 8 - 10 times.

Half push ups

Lie on your stomach on the floor. Push up onto your elbows, to create a curve in the small of your back. Hold for 10 seconds. If possible straighten out your arms and hold for 10 seconds. Relax. Repeat 8 - 10 times.

Hand exercise

Hold a tennis ball on the back of your hand, fingers outstretched. Balance the ball on the back of your hand, moving your hand around. Can you do this with your eyes closed? Toss the ball up, turn your hand over and catch it. Repeat 8 - 10 times.
